

Families should not be subjected to home invasions via their phone lines. These phone privileges are paid for by that consumer, for their private use. Business should not be allowed to use this privately paid for service to a private home to promote their business. My husband and I are business owners, but would never consider invading a private home with an unsolicited call.